The attempt by the NAB to prevent local traffic and weather by satellite radio is the most recent in a long history of anticompetitive behavior by the NAB. This organization specializes in attempting to strangle infant industries in the crib. Most of the archane rules which attempted to limit the growth of the TV industry. came from the NAB. The television industry learned so well that they adopted the same tactics to strangle the cable industry. Eventually these industrres survived-but only after needless years of fighting to remove the regulatory yolk. Don't make the same mistake again. Let the market work -unencumbered by needless restrictions.
